

Radio host Bowe resurfacing on WPE

INGLINGS from C1 that owns HSN. While the talk show percolates, her Center City attorney, Lloyd Z. Remick, fashioned her the HSN deal.

Media notes

Two weeks ago, radio company Greater Media released Mike Bowe after about a quarter-century on WMGK-FM (102.9). Greater Media yesterday rehired the popular Bowe to replace the outgoing (and outgoing) Tom Moran on the 3-to-7 p.m. shift on WPEN-AM (950). Moran's last shift is Friday, and Bowe is to start Monday.

Over the next several days, Comcast Cable subscribers should be catching the TV debuts of Diane Croce, wife of entrepreneur Fat Croce, and DeShawn Snow, wife of the 76ers' Eric Snow. Last week, both women taped public-service announcements for the Maternity Care Coalition's Mother's Day campaign. (They're on the committee.) The MCC uses "MOMobiles" and canvasses neighborhoods in an attempt to reduce infant mortality and improve maternal health. DeShawn Snow is featured with her husband; his mother, Susie; and the couple's sons, E.J. and Darius. Diane Croce had the never-camera-shy Pat at her side. "He whips them out like they're nothing," she said of his TV spots.

Broomall native Marta Kauffman, executive producer of Friends and Will & Grace, got her hair done at Infinity Salon in the Adam's Mark hotel on Saturday. Hair-salon chitchat: She was overheard saying she was visiting family and preparing for some high-level meeting in New York with NBC.

Swimming legend Donna de Varona flew in over the weekend

"Brilliant Harp" by Joseph Peller was inspired by Elizabeth Hainen. His painting and her debut CD both are to be released tomorrow.

from Switzerland to present the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge's American Friendship Medal to Korea's Un Yong Kim (of the International Olympic Committee) at the foundation's awards dinner. De Varona made it to the Radisson Twelve Caesars fine. Her luggage didn't. So she walked across the street to Saks Fifth Avenue and selected a white St. John suit for her presentation duties.

C. Everett Koop, the former U.S. surgeon general, sat by a window in the nonsmoking section Thursday at Smith & Wollensky steak house (in the Rittenhouse Hotel) — while feasting on prime rib with whipped potatoes on the side. (No dessert.) Koop also posed for photos with a group of eight fellows having a bachelor dinner.

Philadelphia Orchestral harpist Elizabeth Hainen introducing her debut CD, featuring cover design with Zamarin of Rittenhouse. Hainen introduced Hainen as an artist he represented. Peller of New York. Hainen played, Peller sketched results are Peller's painting Brilliant Harp (oil, 88 by 50) and Hainen's CD, The Harp (on the Naxos label). Works are to be released tomorrow. The CD will be in Peller's painting, with Philadelphia Orchestral works, will be up at Rittenhouse Fine Art (1723 Spruce) through May; a reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Temple Music Prep will honor benefactors Stevie Wolf of West Moore. Rather than give the boring plaque, the Temple University affiliate got at Cyral to interpret Mozart's Concerto No. 5. Dubbed the Inspiratic, it will be presented for the prep's gala concert at the Kimmel Center. Guest Soojin Kim will play it.

To his credit

La Salle University professor Jack Reardon after 40 years. Last year's annual accounting adviser, the school named after him, to be given alumni. (First recipient L. Cossetti, a 1994 graduate, who thanked with his success, talked a decision to retire. He did to stay too long. "I Lord for a sign," he said. "For 20 minutes teaching a class was open," he said.
